2. Application Process

Process

The summer internship process consists of 4 steps. The first 3 appraise your i) fit with the culture and values atHSBC as well as ii) your analytical and verbal skills. The final step, the Assessment Centre, is the culmination ofthe application process and comprises a full day of face-to-face interviews and exercises

APPLICATION FORM

To apply for this program, you'll need a minimum of a 2.1 or equivalent in your first undergraduate degree.
You'll be asked to respond to competency-based questions

ONLINE ASSESSMENTS

You will be asked to complete an Immersive online assessment. The assessment is untimed: and comprises situational, numerical and verbal questions

VIDEO INTERVIEW

Hirevue: you will be asked to record filmed responses to principally competency-based questions.

ASSESSMENT CENTRE

AC is a full day of face-to-face interview as well as exercises and group presentations.

WELCOME

Congratulations!
You have been offered a summer internship.

These 3 selection stages eliminate the majority of candidates; thorough preparation is required to pass them.

The final stage in the process, the Assessment Centre is particularly challenging. Candidates are typically informed of the outcome within 3 weeks.

Process (1/2)

1. Application Form

- The form consists of general questions about your past experiences and educational background.
- Apply as early as possible since recruitment is conducted on a rolling basis.
- Make sure that you meet the academic requirements: the attainment of a 2:1 undergraduate degree at minimum (or on track).
- Make sure to know in advance which area you are looking to join (M&A, ECM/DCM, Sales & Trading etc.)

2. Online Assessments

- You will be asked to complete an Immersive online assessment
- The assessment is untimed and comprises a mixture of situational, numerical and verbal questions. Section 3D (from p.13) provides selected examples of the type of questions to expect.
- The situational questions require you to rank, by order of preference, different possible responses to a series of different scenarios that arise in the course of daily work in the company
- The numerical questions are based on the interpretation of graphs, charts and tables with multiple-choice answers
- The verbal questions are multiple choice-based, and test your command of English as well as verbal reasoning.
- Consult the MOOC "Summer Internship- Online Tests" for a comprehensive guide to acing the online tests.

Process (2/2)

3. Video Interview

- 6 to 8 questions based on:
  - your knowledge of the culture at Credit Suisse
  - your personal experiences
  - your corporate finance skills
- 1 minute to read the question and 2 minutes to answer.
- Make sure to practise prior to recording your actual response
- Speak naturally without reading from your notes.
- Be natural, do not come across as reading off your notes
- Smile

4. Assessment Centre

- Final step of the application process
- Full day of face-to-face interviews with senior banking professionals and the HR
- Group exercises and presentations with other candidates meant to evaluate your capacity for teamwork as well as other soft skills
- Interviewers will assess your behavioural attributes as well your technical knowledge in finance
- Show your willingness to learn, your openness and your proactivity
- Make sure to put your best foot forward and to display a positive attitude throughout the battery of exercises and interviews

3. Sample Questions

Hirevue Questions

1. Why HSBC and why this position?
2. Walk me through your resume.
3. Where do you see yourself in 5 years?

5. How does a bank make profits? What causes a bank to make a loss?
6. What is your opinion on the current economic climate?

Online Assessments: Immersive Online Assesment (1/33)

QUESTION

You are starting to work on a project that aims to investigate which new app should be created to streamline internal processes at HSBC. The first part of the project is conducting research on internal processes used globally. This will require working with people in different regions across the world. To do this, you need to build a team to work on the project over the coming months.

How will you decide who to involve in your team?

Please RANK the responses from 1-5 by clicking and dragging the 3 lines, with 1 being what you would most likely do and 5 being what you would least likely do:

Online Assessments: Immersive Online Assesment (1/33)

QUESTION

1. Consider how you can best use the skills and knowledge of those in your network. You want to form a team who will work well together.
2. Speak to others in your immediate team to see if they have capacity to help. You know that you will need their support to make it a success.
3. Review the project plan to identify where you will need support and ask a trusted colleague who to involve. It is important to you to get a second opinion.
4. Reach out to skilled people in your network who you think may be interested in this project. You are motivated to form a team who will be engaged by the work.
5. Before you reach out to others, you identify how much you can do on your own. You are keen to make it a success and do not mind working independently.

Online Assessments: Immersive Online Assesment (2/33)

QUESTION

Considering the new app needs to work globally, an international team is needed to ensure success. As a result, the team operates across different time zones, which makes team conference calls difficult to schedule and run. Some of your global colleagues were unable to join your weekly meeting today, in which this project was discussed alongside what actions need to be scheduled next. Everyone needs to be aware of what was discussed ahead of next week's meeting.

What do you do?

Please RANK the responses from 1-5 by clicking and dragging the 3 lines, with 1 being what you would most likely do and 5 being what you would least likely do:

Online Assessments: Immersive Online Assesment (2/33)

QUESTION

1. You send a brief update email to everyone, outlining the discussions. You are confident that the rest of the members will have the same view.
2. You send a summary of what was discussed. You start completing the actions and can collect any additional feedback at a later stage.
3. You update the entire group, sharing the ideas agreed with those present and next steps. You will think of ways to involve everyone before the next project meeting.
4. You schedule a follow-up call tonight with those who were unable to attend. It is important that you collect everyone's input first-hand.
5. You email a summary of what was discussed to those unable to join, asking them for feedback within the next 24 hours. You want to hear their thoughts too, if possible.

Online Assessments: Immersive Online Assesment (3/33)

QUESTION

When releasing new technologies or processes regionally, work must be done to understand all local rules and regulations. These will determine how the project will progress and the work is typically done before other activities start. You are working on a new app which is critical for the business. Due to this, senior colleagues have asked you to get some of the other activities started at the same time as researching regulations. This will mean the risk analysis can be done sooner but could create inefficiencies and lead to less robust recommendations.

What will you do?

Please RANK the responses from 1-5 by clicking and dragging the 3 lines, with 1 being what you would most likely do and 5 being what you would least likely do:

Online Assessments: Immersive Online Assesment (3/33)

QUESTION

1. You allow your colleagues to make the decision. You understand this is a sensitive situation, with significant implications.
2. You appreciate the importance of working quickly. As these are internal apps, you agree the research can be done at the same time as other tasks.
3. You suggest asking your team what the likelihood of the risks are. You recognise the need to both do the research and start the other activities.
4. You recommend that the initial research is done first, even if this means longer timelines. Following the right process is always at the forefront of your mind.
5. After consideration, you agree that the initial research can be done first. You understand why this process is important for HSBC, although the situation is not ideal.

Online Assessments: Immersive Online Assesment (4/33)

QUESTION

As you work on different projects at HSBC, you will need to collaborate with colleagues from different areas of the bank. On the project team, there are a number of colleagues you will be working closely with whom you have never met before and might not meet face to face.

How do you feel about working with a geographically distributed project team, and why?

Please RANK the responses from 1-5 by clicking and dragging the 3 lines, with 1 being how you would most likely feel and 5 being how you would least likely feel:

Online Assessments: Immersive Online Assesment (4/33)

QUESTION

1. Determined, because although you may not have worked in this way before, you are looking forward to working on a project that has new challenges.
2. Focused, because you want some time to get to know your colleagues. You want to see how the team can work together successfully.
3. Pragmatic, because it can be difficult to work with colleagues in different places. You prefer to build relationships with your closest contacts.
4. Motivated, because you recognise the importance of building new relationships. The more people you can connect with, the more likely the project will be a success.
5. Accepting, because you understand the importance of working in large groups for projects like this. However, you would prefer to work in a smaller team.

Online Assessments: Immersive Online Assesment (5/33)

QUESTION

You have been asked to take responsibility for investigating potential risks to using the app. You have found several factors that have not yet been considered. During a catch-up with a senior colleague, Reema, you explain that either the deadline will need to be extended or more resources will be needed. Without this, there could be a risk that the app does not work as expected. Reema thinks that it will be challenging to get sign-off on these solutions and it would be easier to work longer hours to solve issues as they arise.

How do you respond?

Please RANK the responses from 1-5 by clicking and dragging the 3 lines, with 1 being what you would most likely do and 5 being what you would least likely do:

Online Assessments: Immersive Online Assesment (5/33)

QUESTION

1. You agree with Reema. Considering that you are new to the team, and Reema is more experienced, she should know what is appropriate.
2. You suggest it would be useful to look into this now. While you understand Reema's point, you are slightly concerned about the results of this decision.
3. You further discuss this issue with Reema. You explain that you believe it is the right thing to take preventative action now, even if issues do not arise later.
4. While you are unsure if this is the best decision, you appreciate that Reema is more experienced. You thank Reema for sharing this insight.
5. You decide to speak with Reema again tomorrow. You want to think thoroughly about what the best course of action is.

Online Assessments: Immersive Online Assesment (6/33)

QUESTION

Progress is being made towards the launch of the new internal HSBC app. To showcase this work, you have been asked to create an information pack to be shared with colleagues. This will inform them of the project and the intended outcomes. You have been completing this while working on other tasks, and you now need to move to the next big phase in the project. Your manager, Ting, has reviewed the information pack and has shared concerns about some missing information. Redoing this work would put a lot of pressure on you, on top of the other tasks which are now scheduled.

How do you approach this situation?

Please RANK the responses from 1-5 by clicking and dragging the 3 lines, with 1 being what you would most likely do and 5 being what you would least likely do:

Online Assessments: Immersive Online Assesment (6/33)

QUESTION

1. You ask another colleague to help you redo the pack. You think it is important to balance both commitments.
2. You decide to delegate this task. You believe it is best to prioritise your current activities which are not completed.
3. You invest the time needed to amend the information pack and ask for feedback. You know it is important to complete it.
4. Although it may be challenging, you will spend some time amending the pack. You want to remain focused and do what is required.
5. You immediately meet with your manager to agree the work. You are motivated to add in the missing information promptly, so nothing is missing.

Online Assessments: Immersive Online Assesment (7/33)

QUESTION

Throughout the project, improvements are made to the app features. You have found a new feature that you believe should be included and you are presenting your ideas to the rest of your team in person. As you are doing this, some of the experienced members of the team continue to interrupt you with questions and queries, while other members choose not to contribute to the session.

What do you do?

Please RANK the responses from 1-5 by clicking and dragging the 3 lines, with 1 being what you would most likely do and 5 being what you would least likely do:

Online Assessments: Immersive Online Assesment (7/33)

QUESTION

1. You leave questions and queries that are unrelated to what you are saying until you have finished, so you don't confuse the others. You believe those who are not saying anything are doing so for a reason, so you wait until they volunteer their perspective.
2. You recognise the points of those who are interrupting and ask for your other colleagues' opinions as well. If the silent members still seem reluctant, you will seek their opinions separately.
3. You continue to actively ask the silent members questions, to encourage them to speak and disregard what others have said while interrupting. You want everyone to share their perspective equally.
4. You encourage everyone to share their ideas, asking them to write their initial thoughts on paper first, so that everyone can contribute. You answer these and respond to any further questions.
5. You answer questions raised as soon as they are aired, as you want to make everyone feel comfortable with the material. Once the session ends, you want to give an opportunity to share feedback or ask questions.

Online Assessments: Immersive Online Assesment (8/33)

QUESTION

You have several suggestions for linking the app back to the customer service the bank provides and have shared those with your team. Whilst the feedback has been largely positive, one of your colleagues who joined HSBC more recently, Kieran, has pointed out a number of flaws and shared some suggestions of his own.

How do you incorporate Kieran's feedback?

Please RANK the responses from 1-5 by clicking and dragging the 3 lines, with 1 being what you would most likely do and 5 being what you would least likely do:

Online Assessments: Immersive Online Assesment (8/33)

QUESTION

1. You send an email with Kieran's suggestions to the wider team to gather their thoughts. You prefer to wait for detailed feedback from the rest of the team before acting on Kieran's suggestions.
2. You actively check with your colleagues how the ideas Kieran suggested fit in with what they were thinking. You want to make sure everyone feels listened to.
3. You proactively ask Kieran questions to gather detailed guidance on your suggestions. Whether the feedback is positive or negative, you are motivated to incorporate different perspectives.
4. You review your suggestions based on Kieran's feedback but make minor tweaks only. You prefer to prioritise feedback that has come from the wider team.
5. You rely mostly on the views of the majority. Given that Kieran has only recently joined, you trust that your wider team's expertise will be more reliable.

Online Assessments: Immersive Online Assesment (9/33)

QUESTION

Due to the global nature of the bank, there can be similar projects completed in different regions. Your manager, Ting, has shared that a team in another region has recently launched new technology which is very similar to the work you are doing. You have tried to contact the team, but you have not been able to speak to them directly due to the time zone difference. Instead, they have emailed you some useful information to read through.

What do you do next?

Please RANK the responses from 1-5 by clicking and dragging the 3 lines, with 1 being what you would most likely do and 5 being what you would least likely do:

Online Assessments: Immersive Online Assesment (9/33)

QUESTION

1. Email the team and ask for a follow-up meeting at a convenient time. It is a great opportunity to build relationships with others who can help you with your project.
2. You decide not to contact them, as it may prove too difficult. You are confident in continuing with the project using the information provided.
3. Continue with the project. It is a great challenge and you want to succeed in your own right, rather than use your network to help.
4. Contact the team to thank them. You want to show your appreciation and connect with them further.
5. Email the team and ask them further questions. It is important to take opportunities to form new relationships which may be useful.

Online Assessments: Immersive Online Assesment (10/33)

QUESTION

While working on this project, you have learnt a lot about processes within the bank and how to set up and create new technologies. You have also spent a significant amount of time analysing large data sets.

How do you feel about learning new things?

Please RANK the responses from 1-5 by clicking and dragging the 3 lines, with 1 being how you most likely feel and 5 being how you least likely feel:

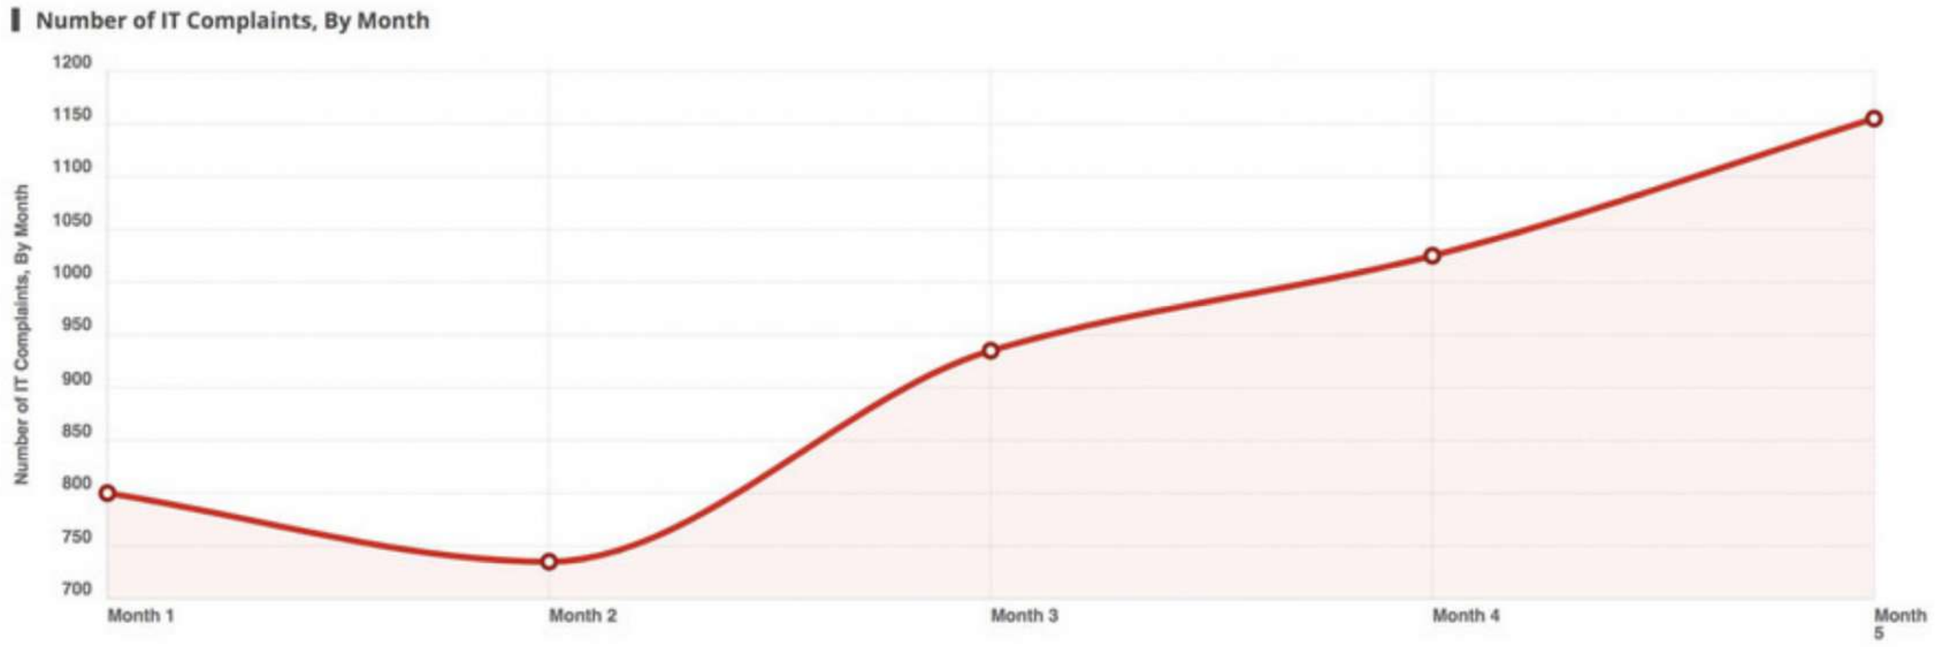

Online Assessments: Immersive Online Assesment (10/33)

QUESTION

1. You feel at your best when you get the chance to learn a lot of things quickly. You want to be able to use this to develop yourself.
2. You like to be guided by the environment you are in when learning new things. You believe this approach works well.
3. You think it is best to have a good amount of time to spend learning new things at your own pace. You trust this is the best way to learn effectively.
4. You feel comfortable learning new information quickly and understand the importance of doing so when necessary.
5. You prefer to take a focused approach to your learning, doing so in a structured way. This allows you to learn new things in a more in-depth manner.

QUESTION

Online Assessments: Immersive Online Assesment - Statement 2/5

QUESTION

Hi there,

Hope you are keeping well.

I just wanted to give you an update on the progress so far of our app initiative. It has got off to a somewhat difficult start as you can see but we are confident that the upcoming update, when released, will solve some of the technical issues that we've been having. This should reduce the volume of IT complaints and increase the number of users using the app.

We're currently under budget with a total development spend of $417,150.

QUESTION CONTD.

As you know this app is a direct replacement for a commercial solution (Ksort) which we were paying around $30,000 in licences per month to support. In a simplistic sense, we will be "breaking even" on the cost of this new app in just over a year, which is great news. However, this is not just a cost-saving exercise. This app has a purpose and our biggest priority is ensuring that our users are at least as happy with the new solution as they were before.

As a bit of background on the attached data:

- App users who give a User Rating of 1 or 2 are classified as "Unsatisfied"
- App users who give a User Rating of 4 or 5 are classified as "Happy"

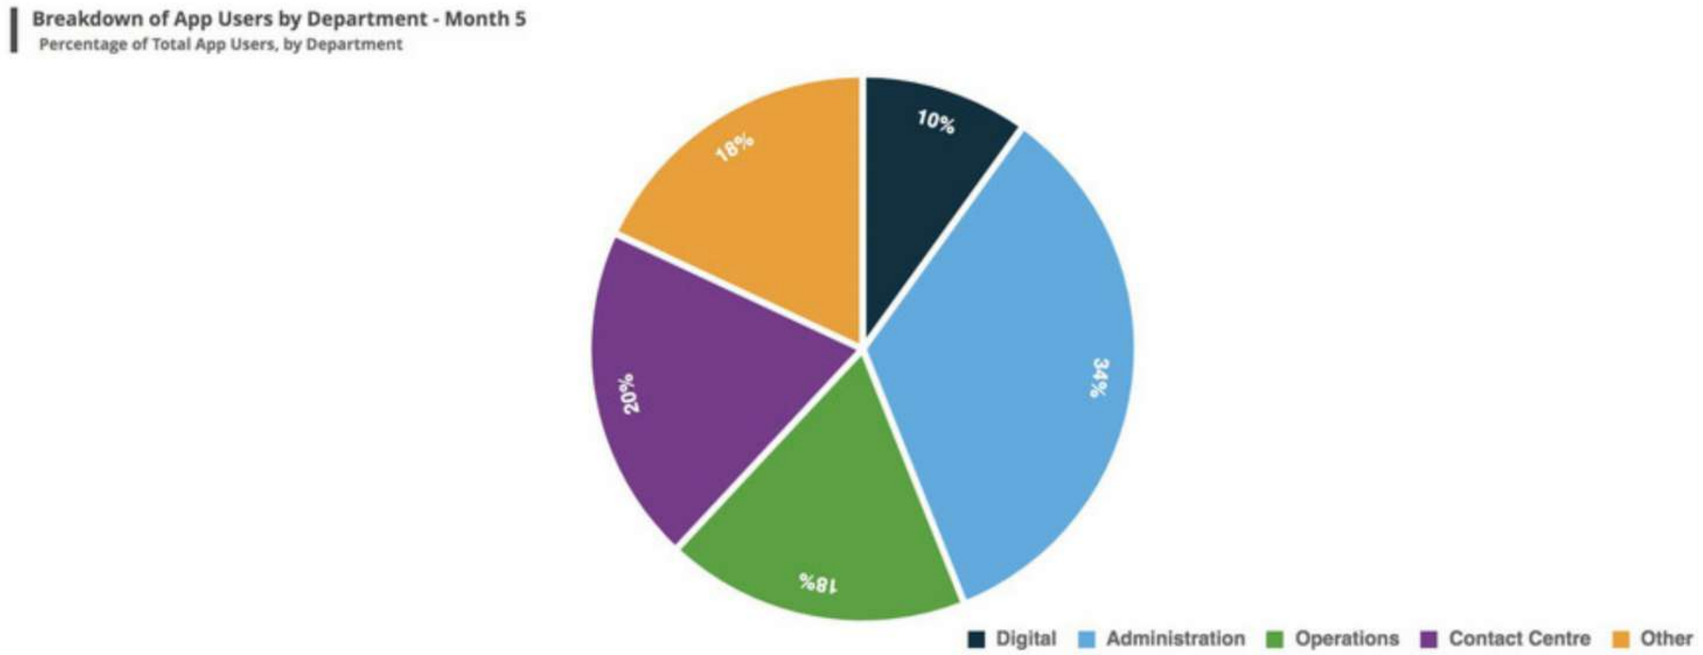

Hope this helps provide some clarity on where we are.

Speak soon,

Alex

Giving Online

The new fundraising frontier

Social media marketing is an effective emerging methodology for those in the non-profit sector to expand their sphere of influence. Many charities continue to pursue direct marketing tactics which can include postal advertising, flyers and in-person fundraising. These strategies are effective. However, charities run the risk of missing out on exposure and donations if they fail to use social media marketing as part of their strategy.

How social media and non-profits complement each other

Using social media as a marketing tool has quickly become the norm throughout a range of industries and this also applies to the charity sector.

The good news is that it works. In year 3 just under $85 million was raised for charities in the USA through social media alone. Some of USA's largest non-profit organisations like CharitAble, Defend, NPLC, and ChildProject have been using social media platforms as fundraising vehicles for several years.

QUESTION

However, the level of engagement the average user has with social media (measured by the amount of time they spend using it per day), has fallen 15%. This may indicate that social media is becoming less popular. It will be important for the marketing teams of these organisations to stay on top of these developments and make sure they can leverage any new trends that come along to replace it.

QUESTION

Working with colleagues globally across the bank means that everyone has the chance to contribute and add information throughout the app development. You are currently working on a report which summarises the app features and implementation plans. You have received data from several of your colleagues and realise that data regarding one of the features is incorrect. Your manager, Ting, looks over this for you and suggests that you wait for further instructions. They think the source of the error should be found before doing anything more.

How will you respond?

QUESTION

1. You use the opportunity to catch up with the colleagues you are working with. You do not like to conduct any work that is incorrect or irrelevant.
2. You ask Ting if there is any other work you can do while you wait for the correct data. You are happy to support if help is required.
3. You use this time to catch up with other work for now. You think it is important to wait until you have the correct information available.
4. You start working on other tasks in the meantime. While you cannot work with the incorrect data, you would not like to waste time.
5. You help review the data in question, trying to identify where the error originates. You like to use your time to contribute proactively.

QUESTION

For the past few days you have been creating a report which summarises the app features and implementation plans. You have a strict deadline for completing the report in three days' time, and you need to spend the next day working on the most challenging part. You estimate that you should finish the whole report one day before the deadline.

QUESTION

1. You spend some time thinking about if there is anything else you can do. You want to take some ownership before asking others.
2. You ask one of your colleagues for their opinion on how you should use the rest of your time. You think it is useful to seek guidance in situations like this.
3. You ask a colleague to read your report and see if you need to change anything. You want to be focused in choosing where to spend your time.
4. You catch up on your emails and review the work you have done on the report. This will help you give your next task your full attention.
5. You identify ways that you can contribute further to your report. Being proactive and using your initiative comes naturally to you.

QUESTION

When working on the deployment of the new app, the team members have been working on different activities. While having lunch with one of these colleagues, Lisa, you discuss how the project is going. Lisa offers you an opportunity to learn about some of her work, which you have not been exposed to before. If you were to do this, you would need to share your working time between shadowing Lisa and your own tasks for the project, which are unrelated to the work Lisa is doing. You currently have a relatively full schedule for the next week.

QUESTION

1. Immediately accept Lisa's offer. You are always keen to learn new things and will find a way to fit this in with your current work.
2. Thank Lisa but choose not to shadow her. You are motivated to focus on your current work rather than learn new information.
3. Explain to Lisa that you think it is best to keep working on your own tasks. You believe this will help you be most successful.
4. Speak to one of your other team members to see if they think shadowing Lisa would be helpful. You trust their guidance will help you make the best decision.
5. After some thought, you agree to shadow Lisa. You think it will be interesting to gain some other knowledge outside of your tasks.
